

Why Moving from Maintenance to a Multi-year Subscription Makes Good Business Sense

A 3-year subscription to Autodesk software can ensure that you get the greatest return on your investment by enabling you to secure the price of your software for three years and receive 10% in savings*.

Here are just some of the reasons why a 3-year subscription is a better investment:

Improved operational efficiencies

With a multi-year subscription, renewals are once every three years so:

- Software users can focus on their primary work rather than getting involved in an annual procurement process.
- IT Administrators can streamline license management so that they can keep their end users up and running.
- Procurement Departments can decrease the time and costs associated with annual software procurement cycles.

Predictable software budgeting

With a 3-year subscription you get price protection making your software costs predictable for the entire length of your subscription.

Additional cost savings

Enjoy 10% in savings when subscribing for a 3-year term length. When you know your company will be using Autodesk software for years to come, take advantage of this easy way to save.

Automatic and worry-free access to your software

Protect output and increase the contribution that your software makes to your business by eliminating the cost associated with accidental downtime between subscriptions.

* Savings of a 3-year subscription is compared to the current suggested retail price for three consecutive, annual subscriptions; actual price is determined by your reseller. Multi-year subscriptions obtained through the Move to Subscription offer are limited to 250 seats per customer group (including subsidiaries) in Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Korea and Japan; and 100 seats elsewhere.
